TBR AND ELEMENTS DEFEATED, The Cherubs Win in Spite of Rain and Kicks and Lancaster Died Very Hard-Other Games. The game at Broad Street Park yesterday afternoon was one of the hotiest, scrappiest and most interesting ever play-

The 1.500 spectators had all sorts of things to amuse them, and the show that was put up was thoroughly enjoyed.

In the first place a dark, ominous looking cloud hovered near in the western skies, and when the game started off appearances were very much against everything in the way of completing the

SOME INCIDENTS. The first inning passed off without incident, but the second was full of incidents and amusing situations. Fred Clausen. who is favorably known by Richmond fans, essayed to toss for Lancaster. He had never lost a game since joining the Pennsylvania team, and he was expected by Manager Rim to "do up" the Cherubs. He tried to do it, but, alas! In the second inning the boys who are in hot chase for the pennant tumbled on to Freddie's curves like so many crows arouping into a corn field. And what they did for Freddie was a pienty. JUST FIVE HITS. Five nice streak-of-lean-and-strenk-of

JUST FIVE HITS.

Five nice streak-of-lean-and-strenk-of fat hits is what they got, which netted four runs, two of them earned.

With this magnificent flead, danger came on apace in the shape of the aforesaid black cloud, and then Piggy Ward kicked. Three runners had pressed the rubber, however, before it occurred to Piggy that that was the proper time to enter his protest. The fact is he was so much astonished at the rapidity with which the Cherubs made the circuit that when he caught his breath, he sicked ick, so that when he did kick it came

HARRY SCHMIDT'S DODGE.

Little Harry Schmidt connected with one of Freddie's alleged curves and hit safe for a bag. When "Socks," otherwise registered in the paint register sdale, went up. Freddie cut a tey shines and Harry was caught With great dexterity he dodged and twisted about, so that Pigry, who was handling the dogskin, got rattled and threw wild to Sammy Larocque and Harry made his scape. In the meantime Reldy Foster took advantage of the little tror by Pigry and had crossed over.

Then there was a kirk a way a kirk.

BORROWED A WATCH.

Ar Betts borrowed a watch of one of the grand standites and held it up to where the indignant Lancaster kickers sould see the hands go around.

The black cloud began to weep tears of sympathy for the visiters, and Sammy beiped Piggy to kick while they turned their backs upon the borrowed time piece and winked up at the clouds and to Manmer Rim, who wielded a hig fan leaf ager Rim, who wielded a big fan leaf palm on the bench.

A thin streak of blue appeared in the horizon just below the flowing, weeping riouds, and the grand stand saw it. Then they knew that if it rained it would not Quickly the minutes flew, and the Lan-caster players, by the advice of Manager Rim, who had his eye on the gate re-celpts, went glowly back to their places, all but Piggy. He wanted to give the umpire some points about the game, and vainly endeavered to convince him that little Harry Schmidt blocked him and pre-vented his throwing the ball to Larocque.

PIGGY MAKES HIS EXIT. The patience of Mr. Betts came to an end and he ordered Piggy out of the game and out of the grounds. After a little further "rag chewing," the joily second baseman packed his bat bag, put on his jacket, kissed his hand to the spectators, and withdrew under the escort of a special policeman. The crowd cheered and jecred him as he bade them adden.

Then Socks sincled and Harry scored.

Then Socks singled and Harry scored. Then Socks singled and Harry scored. Stuart died at first, and the great melo-drama entitled the "Second Inning, or Why He Left the Grounds," came to a

In the third Buttermore was hit by a pitched ball, and Hanavan hit to left field for two bars, on which Buttermore tried to score. He was caught on Elsy's pretty throw in to Schmidt, however, and dled kicking at his own coachers. Hannyan scored on McDonald's wild throw. In the next inning Madison got the walk and scored on hits by Roth and Clausen. This closed the run getting for the game. Hero is the correct score; RICHMOND.

Umpire Betts was too easy on the Lanaster boys; he should have called them lown on the time limit when they were rying to delay the game.
It was a question whether Hargy really aught that fly in the last inning or not.
Sut Buttermore had one just like it.
Harry Schmidt tossed great ball.
Lancaster played good and hard, but the Dorubs were too much for them.
Ziberfeld is the plucklest player in the pushiess. With a sprained ankle he put up a fine game.
